Dream Bathrooms: What to Consider Quick Tips For Homeowners

Calming retreat? Hour at the spa? Private room just to get away from it all? Bathrooms have become more than just a place to do your business and leave. What would your dream bath be like? Here are a few important questions to help you bring your dream to life.

Which bath should you renovate?

The master bath is a much different space than the family bath. Likewise, the downstairs half bath may be a space where design can make a great first impression on your guests.

How do you use your

bath? Also, how much time are you there? Beyond normal bathroom activities, what happens there? Watching TV, listening to music, reading, getting dressed, soaking? Is the space shared with a spouse? Function will help you decide if you need two sinks and vanities or a private space for the toilet with its own door.

Let's get personal How many people use the tub at the same time? This will determine size. Do you always shower alone? Consider things like a second shower head, ventilation, heated tile floors and especially Ageless Living Design. (More on this in a minute.)

What is your budget? The smallest room in the house can be the most costly. However with a good plan, you can get the most out of your dollar. This is where good design and planning bring your dream together.

Other Things to Consider:

What is your age and according needs? Thinking down the road, if you want to be able to age in place in your home, you can consider placing features like striking grab bars or showers without curbs. At Custom Built we call this Ageless Living Design. Your dream bath can be designed to serve you in the years ahead with both beauty and function.

Curbless showers are popular: A curbless shower does not have a "curb" on the floor that requires you to step over. This makes them safer. The options in bathrooms today are endless: Japanese screens, built in sound, pedestal tubs, soakers, energy considerations and more. But, with a dream and a plan, your perfect bath can become a reality!
